Please explain why you would like to serve on this particular board, committee, or commission.

As a lifelong public servant and CEO of a local environmental consulting firm, I bring a deep commitment to community well-being, intergenerational equity, and inclusive access to resources. Having worked in the public sector and led local recreation programs for over two decades, I've had firsthand knowledge of how thoughtful planning and advocacy can shape the quality of life for older adults. Serving on this Commission is a natural extension of my values and experience. I'm drawn to the opportunity to share information about the County's resources and help older adults access those resources, support aging-in-place initiatives, and amplify voices that are often underrepresented. With experience in stakeholder engagement, regulatory planning, and strategic development, I hope to contribute both practical insights and a collaborative spirit to the Council's important work. Ultimately, I see aging not just as a personal journey but as a shared civic responsibility. I would be honored to continue serving on the ACOA and helping advocate for and inform my community about the many programs and services available to them that help them age with dignity and respect.

Describe your qualifications for this appointment. (NOTE: you may also include a copy of your resume).

I bring over two decades of public service leadership, community program development, and strategic planning experience, most recently as Chief Executive Officer of Condor Country Consulting, an environmental firm based in the East Bay. A deep commitment to equity, access, and collaborative problem-solving within local government and regional partnerships has shaped my career. Highlights of my qualifications include:
Public Sector Expertise: Retired Recreation Program Manager for the City of Concord, where I oversaw senior and disabled adult programming, intergenerational engagement, and inclusion-centered initiatives.
Leadership & Governance: President/CEO of a woman-owned consulting firm, guiding strategic operations, staff development, and biological and archaeological mitigation and monitoring for public projects.
Community Advocacy: Proven track record of stakeholder engagement, capacity-building, and defensible documentation that translates public needs into actionable policy.
Mentorship & Training: Deep investment in building team systems and designing programs that support long-term community resilience, of which aging with respect and access to services plays an important role.
Contra Costa County has been my home for 50 years. This appointment is an opportunity to align my professional strengths with a community need and obligation, ensuring older adults in our community remain connected, supported, and valued.
