CAPITOL HILL UPDATE

— THE LATEST ON FY 2026 GOVERNMENT FUNDING. The Senate overwhelmingly cleared its first procedural hurdle on a legislative vehicle to carry fiscal year (FY) 2026 spending bills, but it remains to be seen if this bipartisan overture will last. Of note, the contents of this first "minibus" spending package are in flux. While it was assumed that the Senate's FY 2026 appropriations bills for Agriculture-FDA, Commerce-Justice-Science (CJS), Military Construction-VA, and Legislative Branch would be tacked onto the base text of the bill, it's possible that only the Senate's MilCon-VA bill gets added as talks within the upper chamber continue. Senate Majority Leader John Thune (R-SD) stated yesterday that he'd "like to make it a package of bills, and get as many bills going as we can." The next procedural vote on the appropriations vehicle is slated to occur later this afternoon following confirmation votes on the nominations of Arielle Roth to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Communications and Information, and John Hurley to be Under Secretary for Terrorism and Financial Crimes at the Treasury Department.

- Meanwhile... Fresh off an arduous "rescissions" process this month, the White House is reportedly gearing up for another round of funding clawbacks that will almost certainly stoke concerns about a government shutdown in September. The next rescissions request from the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) is expected to target funding for the Department of Education as the administration looks to ramp up its efforts to close the Department and shift its statutory responsibilities through other Cabinet-level Departments and agencies. As such, the bipartisan appropriations process is in serious jeopardy ahead of the Sept. 30 deadline if this next round of funding rescissions comes to fruition given strong opposition to OMB's requests from Democrats.

— HOUSE SET TO CLOSE OUT SUMMER WORK PERIOD. The House meets today for its last day of legislative business until September after the floor schedule for the week was upended amid tensions over the release of the Epstein files. Earlier this week, the House Rules Committee adjourned its meeting to consider a rule for five measures that were supposed to be taken up on the floor this week after Rules Committee Democrats demanded amendment votes tied to the release of the files. The Democratic minority was expected to continue to offer Epstein-related amendments whenever the Rules Committee proceedings continued, and Rules Committee Chair Virginia Foxx (R-NC) would not reconvene the panel under this current dynamic — one that could ultimately resurface again in the September work period depending on how House leadership decides to address the issue going forward.

WHAT WE'RE READING

Bloomberg: EU Readies €100 Billion No-Deal Plan to Match US 30% Tariff ($)

The European Union plans to quickly hit the US with 30% tariffs on some €100 billion ($117 billion) worth of goods in the event of no deal and if US President Donald Trump carries through with his threat to impose that rate on most of the bloc's exports after Aug. 1. As a part of a first wave of countermeasures, the EU would combine an already approved list of tariffs on €21 billion of US goods and a previously proposed list on an additional €72 billion of American products into one package, an European Commission spokesman said on Wednesday. The US exports, which include industrial goods such as Boeing Co. aircraft, US-made cars and bourbon whiskey, would face a levy that matches Trump's 30% threat, according to people familiar with the matter. The tariffs would be prepared to come into force next month but only if there is no deal and the US implements its levies after the August deadline, said the people who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss private deliberations.

Reuters: Trump strikes tariff deal with Japan, auto stocks surge

U.S. President Donald Trump struck a trade deal with Japan that lowers tariffs on auto imports and spares Tokyo from punishing new levies on other goods in exchange for a $550 billion package of U.S.-bound investment and loans. It is the most significant of a clutch of agreements that Trump has bagged since unveiling sweeping global levies in April, though like other deals, exact details remained unclear. Japan's auto sector, which accounts for more than a quarter of its U.S. exports, will see existing tariffs cut to 15% from levies totaling 27.5% previously. Duties that were due to come into effect on other Japanese goods from August 1 will also be cut to 15% from 25%. The announcement sent Japan's benchmark Nikkei stock index climbing almost 4% to its highest in a year, led by stocks in automakers with Toyota up more than 14% and Honda nearly 11%.

The Hill: Education Department pauses student loan forgiveness under IBR plan

The Education Department has paused student loan forgiveness under the Income-Based Repayment (IBR) plan without a clear timeline of when it might resume. The department argues any IBR forbearances were impacted by ongoing court action. ...The Department of Education is working through a court's injunction after the Biden administration's Saving on Valuable Education (SAVE) plan was ruled illegal. The agency argues that while the case did not impact forgiveness under IBR, what type of forbearances would count for loan discharges were. IBR allows individuals to make payments based on income and family size, receiving forgiveness after 20 to 25 years of consecutive payments. The department has encouraged individuals to join this plan as it shuts down the SAVE option. Those on SAVE will see interest accrual restart at the beginning of August and be kicked off the plan entirely in the following year.

E&E News: Hearing showcases lingering divisions on permitting ($)

Lawmakers in both parties have been talking up the prospect of a bipartisan permitting reform deal this Congress, but if Tuesday's House Natural Resources hearing offered any clues, they have a long way to go. The four-hour hearing on the "permitting purgatory" featured familiar talking points from Republicans about how National Environmental Policy Act reviews have become "limitless and excruciating exercises." ...Democrats, in turn, countered that NEPA offers the "cornerstone of democracy and good governance." And they noted some permitting changes were already included in the 2023 debt ceiling negotiations.

E&E News: FERC approves grid operators' requests to fast-track projects ($)

Federal energy regulators approved requests by grid operators for much of the central U.S. to fast-track certain power projects to stave off potential shortfalls as electricity demand booms. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission issued unanimous orders Monday night conditionally authorizing requests from the Midcontinent Independent System Operator (MISO) and Southwest Power Pool (SPP). The approvals, which take effect in the coming days, follow FERC's rejection of a similar petition from MISO earlier this year. The orders follow a similar approval of an expedited interconnection process for the nation's largest power grid, PJM Interconnection. Like with PJM, the fast-track processes also face continued pushback from clean energy groups that said they favor new gas plants at the expense of renewable energy.
